READ AND LEARN.—Messrs. H. COHEN and CO. have never neglected to supply the most elegant styles of dress, in the richest materials, of the most genuine quality, and at the lowest prices. Since commencing their career in Sydney, they have always made the most strenuous efforts to create confidence and give satisfaction to their numerous patrons.

By strict attention to all changes in the markets, and by reading the most minute details of the most profitable and the most valuable stock is furnished. The nearest selection of workmanship, combined with the best, finest, and most durable qualities, at the lowest charges, are the attributes of the establishment which the ESTABLISHMENT OF H. COHEN and CO. enjoys over any other house in the colony.

Strong and substantial material, rendered neat and portable by the inventions of the best artists; elegance and comfort secured in graceful outline; and durability attained while fashion and style are preserved.

These are some of the properties of H. COHEN and CO.'S business. In every branch it excels; each season it improves, every day it gains new honours; yet constant are the relations made on the price of dress. To those not yet familiar with the system of dress adopted at the MONSTER CLOTHING HALL, the principles are respectfully submitted; each article has its lowest price attached to it in plain figures, from which no statement is made. Any article exchanged if not approved of, or if preferred the money returned.

In the Order Department, arrangements have been made to secure H. COHEN and CO.'S patrons the highest facilities for the cultivation of a correct taste, and to secure an unequalled fit. The first artists in the colony are in the employ of H. COHEN and CO.; every attention is paid to the changes in the fashionable world; the finest materials are used, with the nearest and most substantial workmanship.

Messrs. H. COHEN and CO. are grateful for the immense patronage bestowed upon them, and beg respectfully to intimate their intention to make the utmost exertion to perpetuate the renown they have enjoyed.

not, however, concur with him in thinking that the Attorney-General for the time being on that subject is a gentleman, or that the presence in such a case of a member named in the law—in other words, a layman—has no effect upon the decision of the judges. I am sure that the members of the Cabinet ought to have some laying down of their own views as to what would be a sufficient knowledge of the law to enable them to give all such points as ordinarily would arise in any abstract question of law, and to present to the Crown Law Officers for solution. No professional lawyer, even although he might be a Cabinet Minister, would like to be bound by any unconsidered opinion on a question of difficulty; so that the fact of his being a member of the Cabinet is not so great as it seems to be at first sight.

A sort of compromise has been made between the Ministry and the Opposition for the purpose of bringing the business of the present session to a more speedy conclusion. The proposed reorganisation of the Ministerial Departments is to stand over for the consideration of the new Parliament; the Attorney-General is to be made temporarily a member of the Cabinet; and in his character is to conduct the business of the Government in the Upper House; and the indemnity clauses in the Disqualification of Members Bill are to be abandoned, and only such amendments shall be as are absolutely necessary to remedy the defects in the original Act, and to bring the work of local tribunals into full operation. On the public, having selected for the occasion the first portion of Handel's Oratorio of the "Messiah," commencing with the Hallelujah Chorus. It is our opportunity to enter into a minutely critical review of the performance, but we cannot forbear noting more particularly the choruses—"Behold him who taketh the Lord," "Behold the Lamb of God," "I like Sheep," and "He shall purify the Souls of Levi," as evincing the excellent discipline by which so large a number of voices were controlled, and application bestowed by the performers themselves to the various parts allotted to them. The soloists included Madame Sara Flower, Madame Flora Harris, and Mr. F. Ellard, who contributed, as mentioned above, to the vocal effect.

The collection was made at this colony and Victoria and amounted to $111.15; from the sermons on Sunday $27 has been received, making up the sum for the auxiliary for the year $38, a large increase on last year.

THE CITY MISSION.—The anniversary service in connection with this important society, have just been held. Sermons were preached on Sunday, Feb. 27th, by the Rev. Messrs. Reid, Salmon, and Sibley. On the following evening there was a large gathering in the chapel, in Sussex-street, where John Clark was in the chair. The meeting was addressed by the Rev. W. C. Harrison, the chaplain, and the Rev. Wm. P. Fildon, Mr. Rosey, and the choir sang. The prayer of the Lord's prayer was said, and the offering was commenced, to clear off the debt.

Thus, while there are some sufficient reasons for inducing the Government to regard favourably our application, the interest, so far as it is local, pertains only to the Australian colonies. There would arise, of course, in the arrangement of such an important measure, some financial considerations. It would seem to be reasonable, on the one hand, that we should indemnify the British Government for the interest on the loan, and the management of the local Mint, and on the other that we should receive any alleviation of that cost from the increased use of the Mint itself—that we should pay the entire expense and take the entire profit,—or that, in delivering up the whole management to the British Government, we should contribute a certain sum, with the understanding that there should be a deduction made in proportion to the revenue actually realised. It would appear to be the most equitable offer to make, and, perhaps, the only one of the Mint, which, perhaps, the Government could be induced to accept. It would be to undertake to pay any amount that might be demanded. We should know then the entire sum for which we are liable; and should a greater

Another cause of the insufficient returns for the outlay is to be found in the fact that the railway is, to a certain extent, a competitive undertaking, and therefore only enjoys the diminished share of profit which usually falls to the lot of such undertakings. That portion of the grand trunk line which connects Montreal with the harbour of Portland, competes with the Lower St. Lawrence for the carriage to the sea of the produce brought from the upper portion of the river and the lakes. In winter, it is true, the river is frozen, and there the railway has it all its own way; but this is only for part of the year; and while the navigation is free, freights are cheaper by water all the way from Montreal to British ports than by rail from Montreal and thence by sea. Again, from Montreal to Toronto and on to Hamilton, at the head of Lake Ontario, the railway runs along the north shore of the lake, and is, therefore, exposed to the formidable competition of the commodious steamboats and sailing craft which abound, and which, in consequence of the plentiful supply of suitable timber, can be cheaply built. And the whole line from Portland to Detroit (for though parts are under different management it is practically one line) is intended as a rival means of transit to those that have been already constructed in the States. The local traffic of the line will of course be Canadian, but the through traffic, which it has been expressly designed to catch, is that from Michigan, from Chicago, from Iowa, from Wisconsin, and from Minnesota. The shortest route from the north-west States to the sea will

New South Wales has already expressed

What has been done in this instance shows how easy it would be for colonial gentlemen—any of them—to devote themselves to the object of promoting the colonisation of the interior. The same system of diffusion would put that wen-like gathering which would be a desirable peculiarity in Australian forms of life. When people first arrive nothing but thread of the unknown would prevent them from going on to the interior. It is easy to turn casual employment, to occupy mean and filthy dwellings, and to renew all the inconveniences of London life, but then it entails a

The revenue of the department for 1857 was $5,715 12s. 3d., an increase of $6257 2s. 4d. on that of the previous year; the expenditure was $63,865 8s. 3d., being a reduction of $773 12s. on that of the previous year. Not-ness, reside in his adherence to his own religious belief. Concessions upon this point are impossible. The religious man is not responsive to a person who knows the grounds of his own conviction, that others—whatever the station—take an opposite view, but it is the great consequence if men holding certain religiously lightly relinquish them, and by their conduct throw an air of contempt upon the religious professions. Mr. Justice THURGOOD has been so remarkable for his justice and equity, that it is not surprising that he has fallen from the high position which he has so bravely occupied upon these faiths which are occasionally tipped upon his head, and which are returned with equal malevolence. He has not, on his part, incurred any counter revilings. He has, thus, in the eyes of the world, thrown the oil of kindness upon the troubled waters of religious dissension. If we are not greatly mistaken, there will be some who will see a state of things which will make us feel more than the loss of such a man, who standing between the two great parties, has laid hands upon both, and nerve soundly.

from the miserable consequences of national and religious collision. There have been no mistakes on both sides, and that epoch of moderation will soon be over, and that parties who take different views, or have different national sympathies, will band together, and that every man will be compelled, in his own defence, to take a side. Let us, however, for the time, enjoy the satisfaction of contemplating a public life which has served to prolong and to embellish a happier era, one which we fear is destined soon to pass away.

(Sydney Morning Herald, February 22.)

MR. BERRY.

ALTHOUGH we felt it our duty to make some observations upon the colonial career of Mr. BERRY, we have thought it right to wait for several days, in order to afford time for any persons to challenge the facts upon which he has founded his very able vindication. His letter undoubtedly touches upon a great number of topics which, unless read in the light of the accusations they are intended to rebut, give to the document a rambling aspect. This, however, is a difficulty which always attends upon a defence. It is easy enough to make general charges, but to meet them requires a detail with which the attention is sometimes wearied, and which persons who are not accustomed to compare facts are very apt to consider irrelevant.

There are two or three points in the letter of Mr. BERRY, however, which deserve public consideration. We fully admit the right of any colonist to comment upon the conduct of others, so far as that conduct compromises the well-being of the community at large. If such censures are accurate in their facts, and if the conclusions which they draw are reasonable in themselves; if the censures they offer are evidently suggested by the case, and expressed in terms which the case alone would suggest, they are rather to be commended than blamed. We have no question that it is perfectly justifiable to offer such comments, and that any imputation upon them will be entitled to but little public sympathy.

The simplest justice, however, requires that when a man has been denounced as an enemy to his kind, and as combining almost every quality which deserves public reprobation, we should hear his defence, and hear it patiently. If the facts he adduces do not entirely exculpate him from every possible suspicion, still let those facts have their proper weight. If it shall turn out that he has been the victim of reckless accusations, the common sense and the common equity of intelligent men will not allow any prejudice, in which they may perhaps have been shrewd, to shut their eyes to the conclusions which are warranted by a fuller examination.

It is scarcely reasonable now to go into an examination of the conduct of the British Government in offering certain advantages to settlers so long ago as 1823 or 1824. Those advantages were offered to the whole world, and whoever chose to embrace them enjoyed, or was supposed to enjoy, equal privileges. It is quite impossible to convey to any person recently arrived, an idea of what the prospects of the colony were at that time, or what the appearance of the land. Let it be, however, understood that the settler came where, for one free man unconnected with the Government, there were at least twenty convicts—that he had in point of fact to suffer much of the inconvenience which would arise from living within the precincts of the goal. Let it then be remembered that the country which he came to occupy was, in the popular imagination, at almost an insupportable distance from European civilization. And let it further be considered that the produce of the ground which he came to till had but an uncertain value, and that the market was often glutted. Let all these points be taken into consideration, and we can scarcely join in reproaching the Government of that day for having been reckless in its offers. It appears however, that the greater part of Mr. BERRY's property was purchased.

The next point is the use made by Mr. BERRY of his position as a landholder. It appears clearly from his statement, as well as from the condition of adjacent land now in the possession of the Government, that it was quite impossible for him to have used that of which he became the owner, except it were dealt with in large quantities, and unless an immense outlay were made for the purpose of preparing it for cultivation. Land in some situations may be occupied by the acre, but where it is covered with water, or exposed to the inundations of the tide, it is necessary to form cuttings and embankments, and thus to incur expense which it would be impossible for any small proprietor to contemplate.

It is fortunate, perhaps, for Mr. BERRY—so far as he may feel interested in public opinion—that there remains in the part of the country where he became proprietor, some land still in the hands of the Government. It lays useless, because no one would venture to purchase it and incur the expense which Mr. BERRY had the courage to face. It is of course impossible for any one to form a conclusion whether Mr. BERRY has made the best use of the land he claims. We can only look at the facts which he has given. In the spot, represented as utterly desolate, he has shown that there are 1470 persons, including a considerable tenantry. Of course, it is very easy for the imagination to picture such a place as being filled with towns and villages, and teeming with abundance, but it is only fair to say that such spectacles are rather scarce in colonies, and especially where the first stages in occupation are attended with much difficulty. We have very little doubt, that in the course of a few years the Shoalhaven district will be occupied far more extensively than at present; and those who are accustomed to assume the credit of accomplishing whatever the slightest calculation will enable men to predict—will no doubt impute the improvement of that district to the abuse which Mr. BERRY has suffered. But looking at what he has done—seeing that he has reclaimed a swamp—that he has collected 1470 inhabitants—that it is scarcely possible to find an individual who has reclaimed as much land, or spent as much money, or who has laid it out as well and as effectively as Mr. BERRY; the public will scarcely consent to his being gibbeted as a public enemy because he has not been permitted to see all the consequences which must result from his protracted labours.

Had Mr. BERRY invested out his capital in squabbles, or loaned it at fifteen per cent, he would have escaped much personal envy and defamation; but he would have been less entitled to public gratitude. What would have been the position of this country had there been a hundred colonists of Mr. BERRY's stamp where we find them? men, who would devote themselves through a quarter of a century to one particular object; who, instead of dissipating their means upon personal enjoyment, would add continually to the improvements about them, and prepare the country for the occupation of a generation that would succeed them? Are we to put in comparison with Mr. BERRY a man who, has occupied a splendid habitation, and surrounded himself with all the luxuries of life during a quarter of a century, and whose estate, if not encumbered with debt, has shown no substantial improvement? Are we to put such a man in comparison with the laborious, persevering, and intelligent labours of settlers like Mr. BERRY, who showing that he has been the purchaser of the soil which he owns at the current, and often at the highest price, can say that he found a swamp and will leave a splendid agricultural district?

There are many points thrown up in the course of this discussion which may interest for the moment, but we regard those we have noticed as the true question at issue. Mr. BERRY must be the best judge of the terms upon which he should let his own estate. If his terms are unsuitable to the circumstances of the place or to the times, we can scarcely suppose that they can be successfully imposed. We are not living in a country where men can be occupied by one individual. We are told that there are innumerable tracts of lands now in a state of nature, and which any one may have at a price such as Mr. BERRY charges for a yearly rent. We have no doubt whatever that it is far better for a man without capital to become the tenant of a respectable landholder upon such terms as may be mutually agreed upon—where all the benefits of civilisation are collected, and where a market is accessible—than to accept as a free gift the finest land in the distant interior.

Instead of regarding Mr. BERRY as a tyrant and the miser exhibited to the populace, we think the facts which he has produced show that he has been a great public benefactor, and that in the prospect of that change which his years must lead him to anticipate, he may at least have the satisfaction of knowing that he has not, in so far, lived in vain.

(Sydney Morning Herald, March 7.)

THE NAVIGATION OF THE DARLING.

CAPTAIN CADELL's effort to navigate the River Darling has been very successful for a first attempt. He has not managed to reach Fort Bourke, which, from its being the point where many streams unite, is popularly presumed to be the head of navigation, but he has got over more than half the distance. He entered the River Darling on the 27th January, in four days he reached Leilley's Bend, where the river forms an elbow, and in four days more he reached Mount Murchison. By the winding course of the river this is probably about five or six hundred miles; as the crow flies it would be about two hundred. From Mount Murchison to Fort Bourke would be a day's journey of about one hundred and seventy miles. A successful attempt was made to ascend a little further still, but we presume it was found undesirable to push on, as the vessel soon turned back, and reached the junction on the 13th. The voyage was commercial as well as experimental, for flour and other stores were delivered at the station of Messrs. H. and B. JAMES, at Mount Murchison, and one hundred bales of wool brought down. Captain CADELL's reception on the part of the resident settlers is said to have been very enthusiastic; and well it might be, for he has immensely added to the value of their holdings, and brought them, though located in the very heart of the continent, and at the very outskirts of civilisation, within easy reach of the seaboard and the great centres of trade.

The channel of the Darling had never previously been surveyed, any boat journey, as had been the case with the Murray and the Murrumbidgee, not having been spent in clearing it of snags. These snags abound, and the steamer did not escape collisions, but suffered no material injury. The possibility of ascending the river still higher is, of course, an open question, but as the river at Mount Murchison had fallen seventeen feet when the Albion steamer reached that point, it is clear that she had been a month or two earlier there to have gone up much higher. The settlers on the banks, who are most interested in encouraging the navigation of the river, will doubtless make observations as to the rise and fall of the water at different seasons, and the extent to which freshes are caused by rains on the Upper Namoi. It is too early yet to predict that the river will be navigable every year, but the probability is that in all but unusual seasons there will be months when the settlers can snatch at the opportunity of getting up stores, and sending down their produce. A depot has been formed at Leilley's Ponds, which is a central point for a large area of pastoral country.

Mr. MACLEAY's select committee recommended that a reasonable sum of money should be voted towards clearing the channels of the Murray and the Murrumbidgee, and the report of this committee has been adopted. There will probably be no objection now to include the Darling in these operations, and improve what must henceforth become the great highway for the stores and produce of the far distant settlers that cluster along its banks. Such an outlay is about the only return in the shape of public improvements that those settlers will get in return of the now heavy assessment tax, and can in justice hardly be denied them if applied for. Captain CADELL has added another laurel to the wreath he has already honourably won, and increased his claim to some public recognition of his services.

PARLIAMENT OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

POLITICAL SUMMARY.

Our last summary was by the Salento, and since then we have very little of note to record in the political world. The signature of Mr. Donaldson—acknowledged leader of the Opposition in the House of Assembly—by that vessel, has very much diminished the animation of the debate; in fact, the Ministers, confident in a solid majority of members, scarcely think it worth while to reply to the numerous attacks made on them. The resignation of Mr. LUTWYCHE as Attorney-General, and his promotion to the Judgeship of the Supreme Court, have been the principal feature of these attacks, and have provoked much discussion in both Houses. The appointment, too, of Mr. BAILEY as Attorney-General, and Mr. HARGREAVE as Solicitor-General, nearly estranged the two Houses, the community, has excited some dissatisfaction. These two gentlemen were not intended at first to be political officers, or to have seats in the Executive Council, though they were to go out with the Ministry; but the Legislative Council having declared that it would recognise no representative of the Government in the House except a member of the Executive Council, as a temporary expedient, Mr. Bailey has been sworn in.

In the Assembly, on the 23rd February, motions were placed on the paper by the Colonial Secretary for re-organising the system of Responsible Government. They proposed that the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General should not have seats in the Executive, and that two new departments should be created—one to be called the Department of Public Works, and the latter the Department of Trade and Customs.

These resolutions have since passed by a majority of one, but they are so unfavourably looked upon by the necessary estimates to give them effect will not be brought down during the present session. A Department of a Minister of Justice and of Public Instruction, with the permanent appointment of an independent and unpolitical Crown Prosecutor, is the more popular measure out of doors.

The District Courts Bill is not yet passed; and, to the grievous injury of the community, there has now been no means of taking legal process for the recovery of small debts since November last. The objectionable indemnity clauses which the bill contained have, however, been withdrawn by the Government, and the bill will now probably pass, and become law at once.

In the Legislative Council, on the 23rd February, Mr. E. DEAS THOMSON made an interesting statement in reference to the establishment of telegraphic communication between Australia and Great Britain. By mutual consent, he proposed, about £200 per mile would be required for the construction of the line, and a subsidy of £12,500 per annum would be required from the Australian colonies. As there seems a mutual disposition to bring this question to a close, if nothing untoward happens, it is likely Parliament will be prorogued at the end of next week.

THE COUNCIL.

On Wednesday, 16th February, Mr. HOOD, resumed his seat on the Council. Several motions on the paper were postponed, on account of the absence of the members who had given notice.

The motion for an address for the Lang-Island correspondence, the adjourned debate on which was to have come on, was disposed of very summarily, although a lengthy debate had been expected, from former information given by Mr. ISAACS and others, that they had "something" to say upon the question. The resumption of the debate was called on. The ATTORNEY-GENERAL stated that he had not a word to say more on the subject, nor one else rose. The President put the question, and the motion was agreed to. A few seconds after Mr. ISAACS entered the House.

On Thursday, 17th, the Lang-Island correspondence was laid upon the table of the House by the ATTORNEY-GENERAL, and was ordered to be printed. The 13th standing order of the House was suspended, for the purpose of enabling Mr. PENNINGTON to present a petition from Mr. WAIN TUCK, for a private bill to enable him to light the towns of East and West Maitland with gas. The motion was unopposed, and the House resolved on all sides that the object in view was one of public interest and advantage.

A very long discussion took place, on the motion of Mr. WAIN TUCK, for a description of coal found in the colony, with the view of ascertaining its comparative usefulness for mercantile purposes. The motion was seconded by the Minister for LANDS and PUBLIC WORKS, and was opposed by Mr. WILLIAMSON, and others. The previous question was moved by Mr. FORSTER, and carried. The motion of Mr. FLOOD, that all public works contracts should be put under the control of the Government, was moved, but lapsed for want of a quorum.

On Wednesday, 16th, in answer to a question from Mr. FORSTER, the SECRETARY FOR LANDS and PUBLIC WORKS, stated that it was not the practice for the Attorney-General to be called in to practice his profession privately, and that in doing so the clerk of works at Newcastle had acted irregularly, and an order had been given to discontinue the practice.

In answer to a question from Mr. RORTON, the Colonial Secretary said that the opinion of the present Attorney-General had not been given on the subject of the proposed bill to amend the District Courts Act, relating to the removal of Mr. H. C. North, and which led to that gentleman's dismissal from the magistracy; but the present Attorney-General was at the Executive Council when the bill was introduced, and the late Attorney-General was acting on the matter.

The District Courts Act Amendment Bill was, on the motion of the Colonial Secretary, read a second time, and the House went into committee upon it. The bill was then read a third time, and passed without opposition; but the third, fourth, and fifth clauses indemnifying the Government for all proceedings in Courts of Requests since the proclamation of the 1st of January, 1878, were warmly opposed by Mr. PLUNKETT, Mr. HAY, and Mr. FAUCETT.

In the course of the debate which ensued, Mr. WEEKES called Mr. FAUCETT to order on a charge of insubordination, relating to the conduct of Mr. H. C. North, and which led to that gentleman's dismissal from the magistracy; but the present Attorney-General was at the Executive Council when the bill was introduced, and the late Attorney-General was acting on the matter.

The House then went into committee on the District Courts Bill, but, after some technical discussion on the fourth clause, it was counted out.

On Thursday, 17th, on the meeting of the House, Mr. FAUCETT rose and said, that he had taken the Speaker that in the course he had taken the previous evening, he had not the remotest intention of acting with discourtesy, either personally to him or to any member of the House. On the contrary, he was on every occasion, as he was the dignity of the Speaker, and of the House through him, as its representative. After explanations of the circumstances attendant on the breach of order, on both sides, the House resolved, by a majority of 18 to 8, that Mr. FAUCETT, subject, however, to the condition that it had been made use of under circumstances of great provocation.

In answer to a question from Mr. FLOOD, the Colonial Secretary said, it was the opinion of the Attorney-General, that aboriginal natives not qualified to give evidence in a court of justice, were not entitled to be sworn in as jurors on any Electoral List, and to vote for members of Parliament.

In reply to a series of questions from Mr. RORTON, the Colonial Secretary stated that there had been no investigation into the conduct of C. E. Smith, Esq., and E. C. North, Esq., magistrates of the Carcoor bench, in the case of Henry Snowden; that there had been some talk of his being sworn in as a juror, and Mr. O'Brien; that further enquiry would be made; and that Mr. Smith was retained in office as a magistrate, Mr. North ought to be reinstated in the commission of the peace.

THE ASSEMBLY.

On Friday, 18th February, after some papers had been laid upon the table, Mr. FORSTER asked—“Whether the Government had received any intelligence of the speedy separation of the colony of Western Australia from the colony of New South Wales? 2. MUSIC AND THE DRAMA.

ALTHOUGH there has been but one musical entertainment up to the public during the past four weeks, yet the preparations that are making for two very grand displays of vocal and instrumental music, have, during that period, kept our musical amateurs on the alert. The first of these being a selection of sacred and secular music, to be given on Thursday, the 17th instant, at the Prince of Wales Theatre in aid of the funds of the Australian Asylums at Randwick, gives exceeding great promise, the more especially as the choruses, &c., are under the direction of Mr. Nathan, that veteran professional, whose name in connection with Byron's melodies can hardly yet be forgotten in England.

The one musical entertainment was the first concert of the Sydney Vocal Harmonic Society, given on Tuesday evening last, and more particularly noticed by another column. The second grand vocal and musical display has reference to this Society, since it is projected by its members and committee of management to hold very shortly a musical festival, to last three days, in the grand hall of the University, for both these entertainments the practice is most continuous and persevering, whilst to judge from the rehearsals we have attended, the prospects of success are most encouraging.

In regard to Theatrical affairs we are glad to be able to remark that a better taste seems to have commenced to reign upon our local stage, the miscegenation of the pieces produced being of a far superior anything that our Sydney boards have ever before trodden.

The success attending the production of Lalla Vencz, at the Prince of Wales Theatre, and the spectacle-burlesque at the Victoria, and Planche's Once upon a time there were two Kings' has regarded brought out in a gorgeously of style and magnificent scenery that has secured its success. It has thus had an unparalleled run of three weeks. In addition, the Leopold family, aided by Madame Stanger, have produced several ballets extremely new to Sydney play-goers.

At the Prince of Wales, Dumas' (the younger) play of Camille has been performed for the last evening. The play has been well cast, the acting by Mrs. Poole and Mr. Edwards in the leading characters being worthy of encomium.

Miss Mary Provost has undertaken, pro tem., the management of the Victoria Theatre, and will make her first appearance there on Monday evening, in her routine character of "Camille."

HEALTH OF SYDNEY.

A number of deaths registered during the month of February 1856, viz. 121, being 10 more than in January, being over five years ago.

It is interesting to observe, that the scarlatina epidemic, which carried off so large a proportion of the children under 5 years of age, during the last four months, has in a great measure subsided, there being only nine cases recorded during the month of February.

The number of deaths registered during the corresponding part of previous years, was as follows:—

Cottage and Orchard, Kinsale Point.

valued spot, having one position with an eastern and the other with a western aspect. The cottage and its improvements are on the top of the hill, and afford pleasing views of other orchards and residences in the neighbourhood, a portion of the city of York being also seen in the distance. The cottage is a snugly erected of weatherboards and shingled walls, and shingled roof, the contents of the rooms being neatly papered. A brick oven adjoins the cottage. In the yard is a good sized building, intended as a stable or a coach-house, and a large iron shed, which is a well-contrived structure. The garden is a large one, and is planted with fruit-trees, and is watered by a fine stream. Large stone built pigsties, with flagged floors, are near the barn, and a water, never known to fail, in the yard. The garden and all acres are fenced in, cleared, stumped, and

A young orchard is planted out, containing 50 grass trees, a few apple, pear, plum, loquat, and other fruit trees, which promise well. The nursery contains above 400 work trees, intended to set next winter.

The present owner, Mr. T. O'Connell, resides on the place, and will show them to all enquirers. The farm is situate off the Bredford Road, on the eastern side, between the Roman Catholic and English churches, bounded on the one side by Mr. Bellington's, and on the other by Mr. O'Neil's land. The approach is being opposite the residence of Mr. North, the solicitor.

This is a very desirable property for a person willing to obtain a living by the produce of an orchard. All necessary labour can be done, and a profitable return can be made from selling up the various quantities of fruit for which the soil is admirably calculated.

P. RICHARDSON has received instructions from the Executor of the Estate of
 Mrs. Underwood, to sell by public auction, at the
 Mrs. Bank Buildings, George-street, on MONDAY, 4th April, at 11 o'clock.
 the whole of the unusual portion of the ASHFIELD
PARK ESTATE, comprising
LOT 1.—ASHFIELD PARK HOUSE, a handsome commodious mansion, containing, on the ground floor,

There is also an extensive range of brick buildings, at present occupied as a residence by Mr. J. W. Wilkinson, which contain bath, five rooms, two kitchens, and scullery, four-stall stable, coach-house, &c., all of wood; also a two-story brick house, erected originally for a nursery, and formerly, pigeonry, enclosed with a wall. The premises are well supplied with water from a well and several deep water-holes on the property.

THE GROUNDS consist of 17 acres, which can be divided to 28 acres, if desired by the purchaser, 6 acres of which are tastefully laid out as garden, orchard, and pleasure grounds, with a collection of rare trees, shrubs, fruit trees, &c. The remainder of the ground is good forest land.

2.—EDGEWOOD COTTAGE, a small, one-story, brick, two-story, and partially stuccoed, and partially shingled, built of brick and stucco, containing hall with rustic paneled entrance, and five rooms on the ground floor, and two large bedrooms above; also pantry, store, kitchen, laundry, and a small bathroom, and a large, detached, two-story, stall stable, harness-room, cow shed, and poultry house. There is also a large, detached, two-story garage, and other outbuildings. A good well, fitted with pump, a large iron tank and slate cistern supply the premises with abundance of water.

3.—THE GROUND, as per plan, contains four acres, but is not extended to the full area; also, a portion of which is laid out as garden and orchard, planted with well selected fruit and ornamental trees.

4.—THE REMAINING UNOCCUPIED VILLAGE SITES, consisting of beautifully situated plots, all of which containing one or more acres, each fronting the main road, and the principal streets of the village.

Mr. Richardson scarcely deems it necessary to say any comments on the above valuable properties, as they are so well known, and the value of the land on which the lots are so firmly established. A number of the lots were disposed of at the sale on the ground, and since then the prices offered, and in some cases higher than those received at the auction sale. And he would simply remind those who have not yet purchased, that this will be the last opportunity for so doing on the liberal terms now mentioned.

He would like to view Ashfield Park House, &c., and further particulars may be obtained at the Rooms, where also an architect's plan, with elevation, &c., of the premises may be inspected.
